SG210 MAN DOWN ALARM

LONE WORKER ALARM

The SUREGUARD Man down Alarm has been designed to offer peace of mind to lone or remote workers. If trapped or injured a remote worker may not be found for several hours, however, the Man Down Alarm will summon immediate help. Pulling the rip cord activates a 110dB siren which can be heard at great distances (over 1/4 mile). Should the wearer be incapacitated the siren will sound automatically.

It works by sensing the user's movement. After a period of immobility (typically 4 minutes) a warning alarm will operate. The unit goes into full alarm after a further 1 minute of immobility. For immediate assistance the user can pull the rip cord to sound the alarm. Constructed in ABS the unit is robust but light weight affording the wearer complete peace of mind.

Useful in large warehouses/stores, underground workers, building trade workers, electricians, water utility workers, night watchmen, security guards etc.

It provides an immediate call for help should the wearer be trapped or injured. In case of incapacity the siren will sound automatically.

This product allows companies to adhere to new provisions in the Health & Safety Act, which gives companies a duty of care to protect their workforce operating out in the field, without spending thousands.
